Safety fears at unmanned loos

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

CONCERNS have been raised about the safety of children at a playground and others using public toilets that will no longer be manned full-time from next month.

The toilets, on Haverhill Recreation Ground in Camps Road, have previously won national awards for being clean and welcoming.

But staff who have worked there for many years are to be moved elsewhere when new company Ocean from Luton takes over the contract to maintain public toilets through St Edmundsbury from June 1.

Last year, the Weekly News featured anxious parents who had discovered discarded syringes at the children's playground which is close to the toilets.

Adrian Bayford, whose wife Gillian found the needles last year, said he was very unhappy about the plan. He said: "I think it is disgusting. They are just going to get wrecked. It needs someone there all the time to make sure they are clean and secure.

"I took my son up there the other day and took him in the toilets to change him. I was really impressed by how clean it was.

Ultimate time for care cash

HAVERHILL residents are invited to take on their ultimate challenge and raise money for a cancer charity at the same time.

Marie Curie Cancer Care's Rise to the Challenge programme has more than 200 events planned in the UK and abroad.

It includes a collection of once-in-a-lifetime opportunities to see China, Africa and Jordan on one of its treks or visit New York to run the marathon.

Closer to home, short walks around Dartmoor or the Peak District are excellent opportunities for novice ramblers, while those that like extreme adventures can try the Yorkshire Three Peaks or Snowdon.

All the money raised will allow the charity to continue to provide high-quality nursing free to people with cancer and other terminal illnesses in the area, to give them the choice of dying at home, supported by their families.

Pupils get top tips from gardener

YOUNG green-fingered enthusiasts got some expert help in their school garden with a visitor from the Royal Horticultural Society.

Alison Findlay, from the RHS Campaign for School Gardening group, spent the day with pupils at Kedington Primary School on Monday.

She ran sessions for Years 1 to 4 including craft in the garden, exploring various plants and planting them in a sensory garden.

Children at the school are keen gardeners, with an active gardening club, and have already produced vegetables which have been used in the school kitchen.

Mum's plea to bikers after son's tragic death off road

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

One moment, loving mum Paula Armstrong was helping her son Andrew celebrate his 18th birthday – a week later she was looking at his lifeless body on a mortuary slab.

Paula and her family are still struggling to come to terms with the tragic loss of a much-loved son and brother, who died after crashing into a post while riding a motorbike off road.

The 41-year-old has decided to speak publicly for the first time about the affects Andrew's death, almost three years ago, have had on her family in support of a police campaign to warn youngsters of the dangers of riding bikes off road.

Paula believes that only by spelling out the harsh reality of what happened to Andrew, can she prevent another family facing the same heartache.

Her husband, also called Andrew, was so devastated by the loss of their son that he suffered a complete mental breakdown and spent three months in hospital receiving treatment. He has been unable to return to work since the tragedy and Paula is now his carer at their home in Queensway, Haverhill.

Paula said: "Andrew had only got the bike two days before he died. He got into bikes from a very early age, but his father and I were both unhappy when he got this bike because of the size of it.

"I even said to his father 'That bike will be the death of him.' You say these things, but you never think it will actually happen.

"Two days later I was at my friend's house when I got a hysterical phone call from my daughter saying Andrew had had an accident on the field and he was unconscious. We went up there, but I had a sinking feeling. I said 'my boy is dead', I just felt it.

"A mother will never know what love she has for her child until she sees them on a mortuary slab. Life has changed completely for the whole family, it has been totally devastating. My daughter found out she was pregnant just after Andrew died and I felt nothing at all.

"There have been many times I have wanted to give my life up. They say it is like losing a limb, but it is worse. You lose your whole direction in life.

"I would say to parents if you know your kids are riding bikes, you need to wake up to the danger and the way it would affect your whole life if something like this happened.

"I just feel like there is a great big hole in my life which can never be filled. Kids just don't listen, they think they are invincible. It is the parents' responsibility to stop them riding off road. I think these bikes are killing machines. If one mother in this town takes action because of this, then I have done a job and my son won't have died in vain."

Andrew's other love after bikes was his music and Paula said, with encouragement from friend Mark Crawford, he had hoped to make a career of working as a DJ in clubs.

More than 400 people attended Andrew's funeral and she hopes to raise enough cash for a bench to be put in his memory on the green opposite her home.

Pc Will Wright said police hoped that Paula's warnings would hit home and stop other youngsters being injured or killed.

He said: "At this time of year we get increasing complaints about bikes. They are not just risking their own lives, but they are a danger to other motorists."

There is no land in the Haverhill area where it is legal to ride off road and anyone who sees someone breaking the law should phone (01284) 774100 immediately.

Woman found guilty of making false rape claim

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A WOMAN who falsely claimed she was raped has been convicted of attempting to pervert the course of justice.

Jade Brooks, now 19, had denied the charge but was found guilty by a jury following a four-day trial.

Brooks claimed she was raped in woodland in Haverhill in July, 2008, when she was 17.

But she ended up being arrested, after refusing to be video-interviewed by police, as the man she accused was released without charge.

During the trial, witnesses told how they had seen Brooks emerge from the wooded area where she later alleged she was raped, laughing and kissing the man she went on to accuse.

The 18-year-old Haverhill man was arrested at his home after Brooks made the allegation.

Giving evidence, he said he and two friends had been drinking at the White Hart pub and met three girls in the High Street before going to a wooded area near Haverhill's former railway station.

The man said he was led into a copse by Brooks where, at her request, they had sex. He told the jury: "I didn't rape her."

Later that evening he and Brooks had sex at a friend's house, when again she was a willing participant.

He said: "She is just a liar and an attention seeker. She has got no one to feel sorry for her."

A witness said he saw Brooks and the man kissing and then going into the copse. He could hear giggling, but no sounds of distress or alarm.

He said when Brooks and the man emerged, both were laughing and smiling. He said the only comment he heard Brooks make was: "I've lost my shoe."

A 17-year-old girl who was a friend of Brooks told Ipswich Crown Court she had seen her kissing and cuddling the man she later accused of rape.

Brooks, of Sherbourne Road, Bury St Edmunds, told the jury she believed she had done nothing wrong and denied she had been laughing or kissing the man.

Brooks, who will be sentenced during the week beginning June 7, was released on bail until then.

Students give special gates a last polish

Team effort: Saffron Purr, 9, and Ben Winney, 8, from Coupals Primary School apply some elbow grease to the gates.
Picture: David Johnson 648420.

PUPILS got out the polish and put in some elbow grease to buff up some striking gates which have been created to their designs for a local street.

Work is nearing completion on the specially commissioned gates – shaped like leaves – that will form a focal point in the newly-enhanced Queen Street in Haverhill. Positioned at each end of the road, the new gates will be closed between 10am and 4pm on weekdays and Saturdays, when the road is pedestrianised.

The gates have been designed by Haverhill students as part of the public art investment in the area. The design is based on huge leaves arranged to form a crown, in reference to the street's name.

Local firm Metcraft won the tender to manufacture the gates. To ensure the students continue to be closely involved, the leaves were delivered back to Samuel Ward, as well as Castle Manor Upper and Coupals Primary schools, so they could be polished and finished.

Metcraft will finish off the project by assembling the leaves into the crown-shaped gates.

Biker badly hurt in crash

A COLLISION between a car and a motorbike has left a man with potentially "life changing" injuries.

The crash happened on the A143 at Stradishall at 5.15pm yesterday.

The rider of the motorbike was taken to Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge with "potentially life changing leg and internal injuries".

He remained in a "critical but stable" condition this morning.

The road was closed last night and re-opened at around 10pm.

The crash was between a blue Toyota Corolla and a blue Kawasaki motorbike.

Anyone who witnessed the collision is asked to call Suffolk police's serious collision investigation team on (01473) 613500.

Concern over unmanned loos near playground

"I know everyone is cutting costs, but you just need someone there to keep an eye on what is going on, especially so close to the children's playground."

One mother, who asked not to be named, said she had already stopped her children visiting the playground because of this and felt the situation would get worse if the toilets were unmanned, especially during the school holidays.

She said: "I don't let my oldest one play down there because of the thing I saw in the papers last year. We only go down there if we are in the town and I am with them."

"I don't like the idea of them being unmanned. There will be parents who let their children go down there on their own and with the strange kind of people you get around these days, you don't know what could happen."

A former toilet attendant said: "They will be vandalised and you will get all the druggies in there. They are nice, clean toilets, but they will go to rack and ruin if they are not manned. I think people should know about it, you don't want to wait until something awful happens to a child or an adult before anything is done about it."

A council spokesperson said: "From June 1 the council will be working with a new contractor to provide mobile cleaning services in its public conveniences in Haverhill and Bury St Edmunds.

"Although the detail of the visits they make has yet to be finalised, the contract has been let on the basis that the same standards of cleanliness will be maintained. We will be monitoring these standards, and the potential for vandalism, very closely and reviewing the situation to make sure that we are delivering a good service. Anyone wishing to report a problem with the conveniences can call the property services help line on (01284) 757372."

Diamond couple lived through hard times

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A couple who have brought up seven children and have more than 50 grand children and great grandchildren are celebrating their diamond wedding anniversary.

A telegram from the Queen and a family gathering at the weekend were two of the highlights of the celebrations for Harry and Beryl Phillips.

The couple from Downton Place, Haverhill, have lived through some hard times together, supporting their seven children, as well as enduring a series of major, life-threatening illnesses which Harry has suffered, forcing him to retire through ill health at 58.

Harry, 77, said: "I was working on the market by the time I was 12 or 13 and I came to Haverhill in 1966 for a job as a window cleaner and to get a house. They were hard times, I had three jobs at one time, as a window cleaner, a chicken catcher and an office cleaner.

"I have had bacterial meningitis, bowel cancer, three massive heart attacks and I am on my third pace maker. I cannot praise the hospitals enough that have treated me.

"I am going to live to 150 just to annoy all the people I don't like. It has been a hard, but good life. I think you have got to pull together, everything seems to come too easily to people nowadays and they give up too quickly."

The couple met in Croydon when Harry was a painter at a house where Beryl was staying.

Celebrations: Harry and Beryl Phillips with their anniversary card from the Queen.
Picture: David Johnson 648463.

She was just 14 and he was 15, and they married two years later.

Beryl, who celebrated her 76th birthday on the day before her anniversary said: "I always say you have got to have give and take, he gives and I take. We have had some very hard times, when he was in the army from 1952-55 we just could not afford to eat so I went to stay with his brother and they helped us. When he was doing three jobs he just walked in one day and collapsed with a massive heart attack. It is a good job we have got such good doctors. I keep telling him he cannot go yet because he has got to look after me."

Out and About on show days

CHILDREN'S charity Out & About will visit this year's Suffolk Show to promote their voluntary work and encourage others to get involved.

Out & About enables disabled children and young people to access everyday leisure activities throughout the East of England and enrich their daily lives. But the work would not be possible without the dedication and enthusiasm of the volunteers who give up their time to support the charity.

This summer, in partnership with Suffolk County Council, Out & About will be at the Suffolk Show, encouraging visitors to consider the benefits of volunteering and offering tips and advice on how to get involved.

Stephen Allman, the charity's chief executive, said: "Our charity helps to make Suffolk a better place for disabled children and young people to live by ensuring they are fully included in local leisure activities within their own community."

"We have amazing support from our volunteers, but are always looking for more enthusiastic individuals to join our team."

To find out more about becoming an Out & About volunteer you can visit the Suffolk County Council stand at the Suffolk Show, at Trinity Park near Ipswich, on June 2 and 3.

Warning to path drinkers

TACKLING alcohol consumption along a footpath and anti-social behaviour around a children's playground are two of the new priorities for Haverhill's police officers.

Following a recent community meeting, the Haverhill Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT) has set new policing priorities for the area. These are: addressing alcohol consumption along the railway footpath between Withersfield Road and Gorton Road and tackling anti-social behaviour surrounding the children's play area in Alderton Road.

Members of the SNT welcome residents to attend their regular public meetings to give views on local crime and policing.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, June 10 at 2pm at the Fire Station, Lordscroft Lane, Haverhill. Details of all other engagement events can be found at www.safer.suffolk.gov.uk

Agency staff clean up in day of action

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A SEA of yellow high visibility jackets could be seen in Haverhill yesterday as a multi-agency clean-up operation was launched in the town.

The IMPACT event, centred on the Clements estate, involved two teams of police officers, Haverbury Housing staff, council staff, trading standards and vehicle registration officers.

As well as a truancy sweep of youngsters who should be at school, they also checked vehicles which were untaxed or parked in the wrong place, garages which were not being rented, but appeared to be in use, rubbish, damage and graffiti.

The action morning will be followed by two days of consultations with residents on the estate, and a "community conversation" for them to receive feedback tomorrow at the Leiston Community Centre from 3pm-6pm.

Team leader Janice Hamilton said: "It is not the most exciting morning, but it is the most positive."

"It lets people see us all out working together to improve the estate and shows that we do talk to each other."

Elsewhere in the town, Environment Agency staff collected two tipper lorries full of rubbish from the Stour Brook, including 12 children's scooters, shopping trolleys and a traffic cone.

Automated Number Plate Recognition equipment was used and a total of 1,300 vehicles went through speed checks, with the majority of them within the legal speed limit. A number of untaxed vehicles were found, but no truanters discovered.

Fire brigade officers arranged to make nine home safety checks and a number of checks were made on garages.

John Sanderson, of Suffolk County Council, which led the event, said it was sparked by information from residents about issues they wanted to see tackled.

Robert Kempster, 73, who has lived on the Clements estate for 42 years, told the town's new police inspector, Chris Galley, that it was unusual to see two police officers on the estate and he had seldom seen one.

He said: "Years ago we had plenty of policemen, but now these villains seem to do what they want to on the estate."

Inspector Galley said the police did the best they could with the resources available and his officers were encouraged to be out on high visibility patrols.

He said changes to the policing structure in Suffolk should mean better responses to the public, with the nearest officer sent to each call.

Pink is hip for tattoo fundraiser

A STURMER woman is to pledge her support for a breast cancer charity by having a pink ribbon tattooed on her body.

Myesha Lyle, 22, will have the iconic Breast Cancer Care ribbon tattooed on her hip on Saturday and is hoping people will sponsor her to raise money for the charity. Stowmarket tattooist Nicky Arnold has offered to create the tattoo free of charge, so that all the money pledged to can go directly to the charity.

Myesha, who already has several tattoos, said: "I haven't got a job at the moment and I could not afford to pay for it, but I wanted all the money to go to the charity. I just thought it would be something different to do and let people see that I support the charity."

"I decided to do it as a friend of mine's daughter died of cancer and an old family friend has just been diagnosed with it."

"If affects so many people, and so many others suffer because of it. I just thought it was time I did something and helped raise some money."

Myesha has a sponsor form at the White Hart pub in High Street, Haverhill, and can also be sponsored at her Facebook site, Tattoo Me for Charity, or phone 07917 874404.

Outstanding young stars receive awards

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

STUDENTS who made extra contributions to their schools and local community were rewarded at the annual Rotary Book awards in Haverhill.

Awards were made to seven pupils from local middle and upper schools, whose achievements were described by the teachers who had nominated them.

Lesley Linden, of Clare Middle School, nominated Chloe Oglesby, 13. She developed a problem with her eyesight at the very end of her primary school years, which was diagnosed as Stargardt's disease, a junior form of macular degeneration. Despite facing problems with her sight as well as starting a new school, Chloe had worked very hard, helped others and had become a mentor to a younger pupil with similar sight problems.

Kelleigh Jansen was described by Parkway Middle School teacher David Maguire as a brilliant example of the strong community ethos of the school. She had spent her spare time working as a volunteer in the East Town park and on environmental work at the school, as well as representing the school in sports and music.

Danielle Dent-Jones, of Castle Manor Business and Enterprise College, is a member of the Haverhill Young Chamber of Commerce and was described by teacher Krysal Vittles as "possibly the best chairman of the Student Council ever". She said: "She is a visionary. Everything she has done has been massive, never self-serving, always done for the school."

Steven Marsh won praise as a talented musician and technician, who had also given his encouragement and technical support to other students.

Faye Battye was one of the top five per cent of people across the country in a maths challenge. She was described by Samuel Ward Upper School teacher Andy Prestoe as "a fantastic role model", who inspired other students in subtle ways, and also shone at art work, helping to create pictures which decorated the hoardings around the Tesco site while the supermarket was being built.

William Howe was described as being involved in "absolutely everything" during his time at Samuel Ward, including performing at Stars in Your Eyes concerts, creating photographs for the St Nicholas Hospice website, helping design new gates for Queen Street and a sensory garden at Millfields Way.

Mr Prestoe said: "He is a very selfless person and has given a great deal to Haverhill."

Ciara Giles, of Castle Hill Middle School, was also nominated for an award by teacher Rob Dovaston, but did not attend the awards evening.

Drop in and see councillors

COUNCILLORS Karen Richardson (St Edmundsbury Borough Council) and Anne Gower (Suffolk County Council) will be holding an informal drop-in session for residents at Haverhill Library on Saturday from 10am until noon. They invite everyone along to meet them and discuss any issues they are facing, or problems they have. Anyone who cannot attend on Saturday and would like to contact them, should email karen.richardson@stedsbcc.gov.uk or anne.gower@suffolk.gov.uk

Movers and shakers will meet up

A DEMONSTRATION of how to shake the perfect cocktail will be the highlight of a free Haverhill business networking evening at Bar Vu next Wednesday.

Bar manager and trained mixologist Leroy Rawlins will be shaking the cocktails Tom Cruise style at the bar in Jubilee Walk at the event organised by Haverhill Chamber of Commerce.

All guests will receive their first glass of wine or beer on the house and there will be a free buffet, courtesy of Bar Vu. Sarah Howard, chairman of Haverhill Chamber of Commerce, said: "This is a new type of event for the chamber which will allow business people to come along, relax and network informally with other firms in Haverhill.

"Bring plenty of business cards because you never know when you might meet a new client or get a great new sales lead!"

"Entry to the event is free for business people in Haverhill but places must be booked in advance. Email Sue Warren at suewarren@haverhillchamber.co.uk by tomorrow. For more details on forthcoming chamber events, visit www.suffolkchamber.co.uk/haverhill

On course to stop drivers on mobiles

MOTORISTS caught using a mobile phone while driving are being offered the option of taking a new road safety course rather than a fine and points on their licence.

Suffolk police are one of the first forces in the country to launch the new course.

Some forces already operate a course option instead of fines or prosecution for other offences including careless driving and speeding.

The first course for motorists caught using phones while at the wheel – or supervising a learner driver – will start this week.

Drivers have to pay the course fee of £74, plus VAT, to take part. By successfully completing the course they avoid getting points on their licence and a £60 fixed penalty fine.

Fines of up to £1,000 can be imposed by courts on car drivers using phones.

Bus, coach and lorry drivers can be fined up to £2,500.

Motorists in Suffolk have been offered the option of going on the course since April 1.

The two and a half-hour Call Divert course covers the law on mobile phone use, statistics about accidents and role-play to demonstrate the importance of maintaining attention while driving.

Jim Kirkwood, managing director of AA DriveTech, the company running the courses, said: "By offering 'mobile phone' education as part of their broader road safety strategy, Suffolk Constabulary is clearly committed to changing drivers' attitudes towards using a mobile phone behind the wheel."

At the same time Suffolk police are introducing a revised Vehicle Defect Rectification Scheme (VDRS) as an alternative to prosecution for minor faults such as lights which are not working.

Roads policing officers in the county are also trying to avoid issuing the traditional HO/RT1 form – known as a producer – which requires drivers to show insurance, MoT and licence details at a police station.

Instead they are carrying out more instant checks via national databases.

Meet the police

SAFER neighbourhood teams will be holding street meets on Saturday at East Town Park, Coupals Road, Haverhill, next Wednesday at St Edmundsbury Borough Council Offices, Lower Downs Slade and on Saturday, May 29, at Sainsbury's, Haycocks Road, all from 10am-11am

A mobile police station will be at Market Hill, Clare, on Saturday, from 10am-11am, at Clare Country Park on Sunday, from 1pm-2pm and at Wixoe, outside the church, from 4pm-5pm next Tuesday.

Boys miss pet cat

TWO little boys are really missing their cat - who has not been seen for more than a week - and are hoping that someone may be looking after him.

Black and white Gizzie is a very friendly, 9-month-old who has not been seen since he was let out of his home in Cambridge Close, Haverhill, on Thursday, May 6.

Owner Katrina Stratton said her sons were very upset about their pet being missing and asked people to look inside their sheds in case he had accidentally got locked in somewhere. She said "I have two sad little boys who are really missing their cat and all help to find him would be very much appreciated."

Anyone with information should ring (01440) 704588 or 07904 642705.

Car damage lands dad with £6,000 bill

AN ANGRY dad claims he is £6,000 out of pocket after his son's car had to be written off and replaced because it was vandalised while awaiting repair at a garage.

Duddley Haylock says he is extremely dissatisfied with the service he received at the Marshall garage in Bury St Edmunds and has written to the Marshall Group head office in Cambridge to complain.

Mr Haylock, of Withersfield, took his son's Peugeot car to the garage for repair and was told it needed a new ignition, which would have to be ordered from France. He was told this would take 10 days and agreed to have the work done.

Two days later, Mr Haylock says he received a call from the garage to be told the car had been broken into and vandalised overnight on the garage premises, with the door forced and the back window smashed.

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

He says the garage told him it was not responsible for the damage and that it was his problem.

Mr Haylock said he paid around £1,000 for the car at the same garage for his son, 18, who is currently taking his A-levels before going to Coventry University.

Now Mr Haylock says as the cost of repairing the vehicle would have been more than it was worth, he has had to pay £3,500 for another car and £2,300 to insure it.

Mr Haylock said: "Andrew has just built up a year's no claims on his insurance, so if we claim, he will lose the lot. My son's car was a 2000V reg and with the cost of the ignition repair along with a new door and back window, has now rendered the car a write off. I was told the car was left at my own discretion in the car park, but after the problem was diagnosed I would have expected the vehicle to have been moved to a secure compound, but it would appear this was never done.

"We have bought nine cars from Marshall's over the years and surely they must have a duty of care to their customers.

"The best offer I received from Bury was £400 for the car – which incidentally was bought for considerably more than that only a few months ago and was worth far more than that to my son – and £250 off a Ford Zetek they had on the forecourt.

"I have agreed to take the Ford as I feel my back is against the wall, as my son needs transport to college and to where he works, but I am extremely angry at the treatment I have received. This is in my view no way sufficient compensation for their neglect of my son's property."

Despite numerous calls, no-one at Marshall's Motor Group was available for comment.

Councillor's cash helps kit out emergency medics team

COMMUNITY First Responders who attend life-threatening medical emergencies in Haverhill have received new kit bags to carry their equipment. Last year, the responders were on call for 5,900 hours and after eight years of extensive use, their kit bags needed replacing. Suffolk county councillor Anne Gower used money from her locality fund to pay for two new bags, one for oxygen and associated airway management equipment and one for the defibrillator and other kit. Margaret Marks, co-ordinator of Haverhill First Responders said: "We are delighted with the new bags and immensely grateful to Cllr Gower for supporting our scheme by paying for these."

"The Haverhill scheme has grown in the past year and now has 30 members. As a charity we receive no statutory funding and we continue to exist due to the generosity of local people."

Sports time for disabled youth

YOUNGSTERS with disabilities will be able to try out at football, basketball, cricket, athletics and table tennis at an eight-week multi-sports session run by Ipswich Town Community Trust.

The sessions, which started yesterday at Haverhill Leisure Centre, are aimed at youngsters aged 5-15 with additional need or disability. However, young people of all abilities are welcome to attend, including their siblings or friends.

Trained coaches will deliver the session, but where a high level of care is required, the young person will need to bring one-to-one support.

Amelia Epton, sports development officer at Abbeycroft Leisure, which runs the Haverhill centre, said: "These sessions are aimed at youngsters in the Haverhill area who have additional needs or a disability who want to come along and try out new activities, along with their friends or siblings."

"It will run for eight weeks with coaches from the Ipswich Town Community Trust."

Supported by Ability Counts and Activities Unlimited, the sessions run from 4pm to 5pm and cost £8 for eight weeks.

New MP reveals his chilling past

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

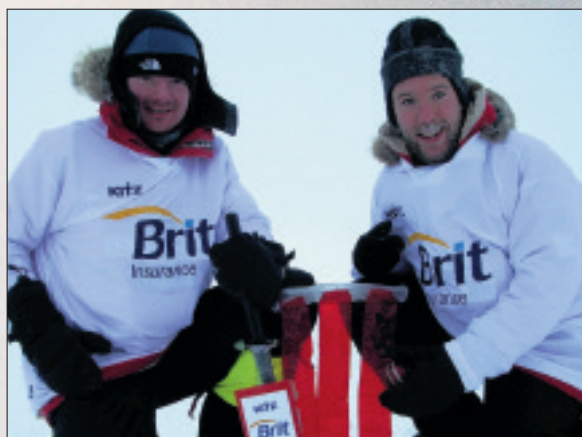

Representing the people of Haverhill should be like a walk in the park for new MP Matthew Hancock – who can list an arduous expedition to the North Pole among his achievements.

Mr Hancock joined long-time friend Matthew Coater on the trek in 2005, setting out on foot to play the northernmost game of cricket on record – at the North Pole. While he didn't reach the pole itself – succumbing to frostbite on the Arctic Ocean only a third of the way there – he did succeed in playing the most northerly game of cricket. He was also fortunate to retain all of his fingers and the two men managed to raise thousands of pounds for Cancer Research UK in the process.

Although disappointed not to have completed the expedition, Mr Hancock, who held the West Suffolk constituency seat for the Conservatives in the General Election, told the Weekly News it was an unforgettable experience. They were also able to take some valuable measurements of the thickness of the ice for the European Space Agency along the way.

The extreme cold was only one of the high risk factors of the trip, which they made entirely on foot without huskies, but armed with shotguns in case they were attacked by polar bears.

The pair spent 18 months training and Mr Hancock, who was working for the Bank of England at the time, found himself eating five meals a day to help him put on three stones in weight to prepare him for the trip. He also spent many hours pulling two large tyres weighing 125kg on a specially-made sled through Hyde Park.

He said: "It was because it was such a challenge, that's what attracted me. I had climbed Kilimanjaro when I was 19 and trekked in various parts of the world, but never anywhere as extremely cold as this.

"One of the funniest stories was when I was pulling my tyres along and I saw someone doing the same thing coming in the other direction, who was training to go to the South Pole."

He added: "The most efficient way of taking calories with you is on your body, because everything you are going to eat, you have to carry.

"In terms of sponsorship we were told that Brit Insurance only sponsored sport, so at their request we decided to attempt the most northerly game of cricket. I was very pleased to bowl the ball at the stumps and get my gloves back on. I was delighted to get my name on the fly sheet of Wisden, alongside names like Brian Lara and Sashin Tendulka.

"Because I got frostbite I cannot go back somewhere very cold and I have got arthritis in my fingers. My wife is delighted I won't be going back on any more trips to the Arctic.

"It was disappointing not to be able to complete the expedition, but it was a fantastic experience. On the north coast of the Arctic Ocean we were about 400 miles from the nearest human being. On the first night it was completely still and completely blue sky. In the daytime it was very hard work, dragging the sled for eight hours. Then the tent ripped and I took my gloves off to sew it up. My mistake was in not stopping when my fingers stopped hurting, which was because they were frozen.

"It was a hard decision to turn back, but if I had got my fingers very cold again I could have lost them."

Positive outlook: Preeti Dhanak-Steele was born with a genetic and life-threatening blood disorder.

Picture: Duncan Lamont 646395

I need a blood every month to

SINCE she was just eight months old, Preeti Dhanak-Steele has relied on monthly blood transfusions and a daily cocktail of pills in order to live.

A GP liaison sister at Addenbrooke's, Preeti, 43, was born with a genetic and life-threatening blood disorder which, if left untreated, can be fatal. Born in Kenya, Preeti inherited thalassaemia major from her parents, who were unaware they were carriers of the abnormal gene which causes the rare condition.

"Thalassaemia is like a ticking time bomb," says Preeti.

"If you don't do your treatment you could go years and years feeling absolutely fine as long as you have your blood transfusions. But then all of a sudden your organs will fail, you'll end up in ITU and you'll die. Many people, hopefully, get a wake-up call before that happens, but that's the reality of it."

BY LOUISE MARTIN

Email: editorial@chaverhillweeklynews.co.uk

There are two main strands of the blood condition, which is particularly prevalent among Mediterranean and Asian groups: thalassaemia major, which is the most acute form, and thalassaemia minor.

Like Preeti, people with the most severe variety cannot produce the required amount of haemoglobin in the blood, which is needed for their heart and lungs to function normally.

This lack of haemoglobin makes red blood cells break down, causing anaemia, one of the first noticeable signs of the condition. Further symptoms can include shortness of breath, stunted growth, an enlarged spleen, diabetes and osteoporosis in later life.

Thalassaemia minor is a milder form, where patients still have the gene but their body can produce enough haemoglobin. It can also cause mild anaemia, but is most commonly detected in pregnant women at a routine blood test when it can become problematic: if the woman's partner also has the abnormal gene, there is a 25 per cent chance the baby could inherit thalassaemia major, and require life-long treatment.

"My parents didn't know they were carriers of thalassaemia because they had no symptoms," explains Preeti.

"If you're a carrier, or your parents have been carriers down the generations, then you're not going to know because you're a healthy carrier. So you won't know you have the condition unless you have a blood test or if, like for my parents, you have a child and your child becomes thalassaemia major."

As the routine test for thalassaemia in pregnant women wasn't carried out when Preeti's mother was expecting her, Preeti wasn't diagnosed until she was 8 months old, when her parents took her to hospital because she wasn't well.

"I had started to become anaemic, irritable and wasn't feeding properly, so I wasn't putting on weight like a baby should," explains Preeti. "I was given a blood test and I was diagnosed with thalassaemia major."

The test showed that Preeti's blood levels were dangerously low and she was in urgent need of a blood transfusion to increase them.

"I've had regular blood transfusions every four weeks since that first one – it's the norm for me now," she explains.

"I go in to the ward with my iPod, hook myself up and that's it. It doesn't hurt; it just takes a bit of time. As you grow you need more blood, so I now need two units at a time. It can take up to four hours, depending on how your body takes it."

Preeti and her family moved to England when she was 7 because her parents felt she would benefit from the higher level of healthcare available.

The youngest of five children, Preeti's siblings were also tested for the condition and the results showed that one of her three brothers and her sister were also carriers. Her brother is currently not showing any symptoms, but her sister has anaemia, which she controls by diet and medication.

Preeti's regular transfusions also increase the amount of iron in her blood to a dangerously high level, which is heightened further as one of the side effects of thalassaemia is to make the body absorb more iron from food. This build up of iron in the blood is potentially lethal and can damage internal organs and even lead to heart failure, so the iron has to be removed by a treatment known as chelation.

This can be done by taking a combination of 10 pills daily – or a soluble daily tablet – complemented by an intrusive infusion drip which needs to be inserted into the body via an injection three times a week and left in for at least 24 hours each time.

"I have to take the combination of tablets because I couldn't get on with the one tablet," explains Preeti.

"The infuser goes into your stomach via the needle and that goes on slowly over 24 to 48 hours.

"The needle has to stay in all that time and that happens three times a week. All thalassaemics administer the infuser themselves.

"Because I've had to do it throughout my life, I just get on with it, but when the 24 hours are nearly up I'm always desperate to take it out."

Speaking to me before her shift at Addenbrooke's, Preeti admits that she is feeling tired, the way she often feels when she is due a transfusion, but despite the lengths she has to go to in order to maintain her health she is extremely upbeat.

"I've been brought up to be positive and strong. As a child, if I whinged, instead of wrapping me up in cotton wool my mum would tell me to get on with it; that's made me quite a strong person," says Preeti with a warm smile.

"I describe the need for a transfusion a bit like when a car runs out of petrol and doesn't go, then when you put petrol in it zooms off. When I'm coming up to my next transfusion I start to feel tired but then once I've had my transfusion I feel fine."

As well as being dependent on her medication and transfusions, Preeti also has diabetes, which she has developed because of the thalassaemia.

"I'm a little greedy, I've got two conditions," she says laughing.

"The high iron load is toxic to the body so it can affect your heart, your hormones and the pancreas, which produces insulin so you become diabetic.

"The diabetes actually gets me down more than my thalassaemia," she admits. "I take insulin as I eat so if I'm eating three times a day I have to take my insulin three times a day too, plus every morning and evening.

"So depending on what I eat I could need up to six injections a day for the diabetes, as well as the infuser and transfusions for the thalassaemia."

At this stage there is no cure for Preeti's condition. During childhood a 'stem cell transplant' is a possible cure either by a bone marrow transplant or a cord blood transplant, but this is a risky operation and isn't suitable for everyone.

"There's constant research going on," says Preeti.

"The bone marrow transplant has to come from a sibling, but I'm too old for that now. Even if I had the option for the operation I wouldn't take it because I don't see myself as having a disease or being disabled in anyway – I just get on with life, I'm a fighter."

Preeti admits that her thalassaemia has made her very determined, a trait she has inherited from her mother.

"I remember going into hospital and my mum being there and I was having a transfusion," she recalls. "My mum was feisty; because of all the transfusions your veins collapse and you can't always get the needle in first time, so she'd give the doctors three strikes – they could try three times to get the needle in and if they couldn't they were out and had to call someone else. So that's how I've been as well."

Despite being remarkably upbeat about her condition, Preeti says she does have low moments but, thanks to her caring husband Dean and her parents, mainly has a positive outlook.

"Dean's very supportive," says Preeti, with an affectionate smile. "He has been from day one. I also have a fantastic manager at work."

Throughout her life Preeti has found support from the UK Thalassaemia Society, which is based in London.

With help from a team of friends, she organised a special event to raise money for research into the condition. The 'Thalassaemia goes to the Awards' event took place last Saturday and showed a selection of short videos from people who have, or know someone, who has the condition.

"Before I joined the UK Thalassaemia Society, to me, I was the only person in the world with this condition," says Preeti.

"Growing up I was very lonely and I felt that I couldn't do all the things that my friends were doing because I needed to do my infuser or because I had to go for a transfusion.

"But thanks to the society I realised that I wasn't the only one – I realised there are other people like me."

Don't give in to pressure from the debt collectors

HAVERHILL Citizens Advice Bureau this month offers advice on debt collection agencies and the problems people face when the arrears have been paid but collectors continue to demand payment.

Q: I have been contacted by debt collectors about money I did owe but have now paid off. They won't accept that the money has been paid. What can I do to stop the phone calls?

A: If you are approached by a debt collector for a debt you have already paid you should tell them it has already been paid and tell them to take it up with the original creditor. If you have it, show them proof that you have already paid the debt, but the onus is on them to prove that they haven't received payment. Contacting the original creditor to confirm you have paid it and getting them to contact the debt collector would also help, but again the onus is not on you to do this.

If the debt collector still chases you for the debt you should make a complaint. If they don't resolve the matter and the debt was for borrowing regulated by the Consumer Credit Act – such as a credit card, store card or a personal loan – you can ask the financial ombudsman to look at the case.

You should also make the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) and the debt collectors trade body, the Credit Services Association (CSA), aware of any problems, because chasing people for disputed debts breaches OFT guidelines and the CSA's code of practice.

Don't give in to their pressure. You should not have to pay twice. If you need help seek free, independent advice as soon as possible. Go to the Citizens Advice Bureau website, www.adviceguide.org.uk, for more information and contact details of your nearest CAB.

Haverhill CAB can be found at the Centre for Voluntary Agencies, in Lower Downs Slade, Haverhill, CB9 9HB. The bureau is open for anybody to drop in without an appointment between 11am and 4pm on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays and between 11am and 2pm on Fridays.

For telephone advice phone (01440) 704012 on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays between 9.30am and 11am and on Wednesday from noon to 4pm. Appointment for general advice can be made by arrangement on (01440) 762194 www.adviceguide.org.uk also provides information. If you would like to join the bureau as a volunteer please ring 0845 1 264 264.

Money floods in for plumber's challenge

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A PLUMBER preparing to ride from London to Paris in aid of a children's charity has received a £500 boost for his effort.

Robert Pratley, of Haverhill's R Pratley Plumbing & Heating, will take on the gruelling cycle challenge in July in aid of Action Medical Research.

To kick off his fundraising efforts, the town's branch of PTS (Plumbing Trade Supplies) has handed over a cheque for £500.

Mr Pratley who has been a customer at the store for nine years, is now half way to his fundraising target.

Mr Pratley, will set off on July 21, joining 750 other cyclists in the hope of raising £1,000 for the charity which is dedicated to improving the health of children and babies throughout the UK.

Mr Pratley said: "PTS has helped me to achieve half of my target already, which is a fantastic result for me, but more importantly for Action Medical Research.

"Cycling from London to Paris is a huge challenge, but the importance of the work that the charity undertakes will continue to spur me on throughout the race.

"The sponsorship will go towards the Touching Tiny Lives appeal, which is raising funds to help reduce premature birth rates and improve the care of sick and vulnerable babies."

Douglas Pearl, branch manager of PTS, said: "I've known Robert for a number of years, so we were more than happy to lend our support and make a real contribution to his fundraising efforts.

"Action Medical Research does vital work and relies entirely on donations to fund a range of research projects that address serious childhood conditions and improve the quality of life for children with disabilities."

Mr Pratley will host a number of fundraising events in the run up to the challenge, starting at The Red Lion pub in Brinkley on June 12 at 4.30pm with a barbecue, bouncy castle, face painting, auction and live bands.

To sponsor him, go to www.action.org.uk/sponsor/robertpratley

Happy endings ahead in three of opera's finest

ENGLISH Touring Opera (ETO) brings its spring "season of happy endings" to Cambridge Arts Theatre next week.

The company promises an exciting new production of Donizetti's Don Pasquale, directed by William Oldroyd, a revival of the hugely successful 2004 production of Britten's A Midsummer Night's Dream, complete with a chorus of woodland fairies from the Cambridge International School, and an adapted production of Mozart's The Marriage of Figaro, originally created by James Conway for the Royal College of Music.

All productions are sung in English. ■ The Marriage of Figaro – Wednesday, May 26 and Thursday, May 27.

Presented in period costume, Robert Davies and Eliana Pretorian play the parts of the young lovers Figaro and Susanna, with Nicholas Lester and Laura Mitchell as the Count and Countess.

Michael Rosewell conducts the ETO Orchestra and chorus, in a production by James Conway. Clarity and simplicity rest at the heart of this production. Faithful to the original, the action takes place in Seville, where the uncomfortable social distinctions of Beaumarchais' play are made clear.

Mozart's "scandalous" Marriage of Figaro is among the most popular opera ever written. The plot unveils the obstacles that Figaro and his fiancée, Susanna, must overcome before their wedding can take place, the most serious of which is philandering Count Almaviva's determination to seduce the bride-to-be.

■ Don Pasquale – Tuesday, May 25 and Friday, May 28.

A new production where the title character, played by Keel Watson, is a tyrant orchestral conductor set on stealing himself a young wife (Mary O'Sullivan).

Don Pasquale is a masterpiece of comic opera, and a mouth-watering example of bel canto (beautiful singing) writing, rich in soaring melodies.

It is the story of the miserly Pasquale, set to steal from his nephew a beautiful and apparently submissive bride, but his clumsy wooing turns to painful woe when she reveals her own mind.

Dominic Wheeler conducts, with set designs by Agnes Treplin. William Oldroyd, whose theatre credits include working with Hori Pro and Thelma Holt, Tokyo, RSC, and The Young Vic, directs his debut opera. ■ A Midsummer Night's Dream – Saturday, May 29

A revival of James Conway's celebrated 2004 production, nominated for a Royal Philharmonic Society Award. Jonathan Peter Kenny, Andrew Slater and David Gooderson reprise the roles of Oberon, Bottom and Puck, with Gillian Ramm as Titania.

Britten's evocative setting of Shakespeare's erotic comedy is given a visually spectacular treatment, with costume and set designs by Joana Parker.

Four lovers who enter the forest on the night of the summer solstice become entwined in the existing quarrels between the fairy king and queen. Resolution comes from a group of rustics, whose rehearsals in a clearing strike a chord with the forest's rulers.

Britten's playful score enhances the magic of the original drama and includes a chorus of mischievous fairies, who will be played by eight children from the Cambridge International School.

■ The Marriage of Figaro, Don Pasquale and A Midsummer Night's Dream run at the Cambridge Arts Theatre nightly at 7.30pm between Tuesday and Saturday, May 29. Tickets £15/£25/£30/£35. Phone (01223) 503 333 or go to www.cambridgeartstheatre.com

Sing it loud: English Touring Opera takes to the stage next week with The Marriage of Figaro (top), Don Pasquale (above), and A Midsummer Night's Dream (left).

A glorious gift for anniversary

REVIEW: Haverhill Choral Society

LAST Saturday evening, Haverhill music lovers enjoyed a special performance of Mozart's Requiem to celebrate the Haverhill Choral Society's 150th anniversary.

Choral singing is a wonderfully rich experience to those involved and is equally uplifting to those listening.

There were some exultant moments as in the Kyrie, with the sopranos soaring to a high B flat. Most of the time there were confident entrances in all voice parts.

Sometimes consonants were too strong and were not followed by enough vowel tones. But overall it was a marvellous offering complemented by the orchestra. Nigel Brown was an accomplished addition, as always.

The Independent Church was a perfect atmosphere for this work, even though the soloists would probably have felt more comfortable being in front of the orchestra which, of course, is not physically possible in this venue.

Katharine Bundell sang the soprano solos with beauty and clarity. Elaine Henson's rich contralto voice was delivered with a dramatic fervor.

Tenors can oftentimes have a strained, brash quality but not so with Nicholas Bewes. His voice was delivered with ease and lightness yet rich in quality.

Nicholas Fowler's baritone also added a confidence and a beautiful quality.

The whole musical delight was put together and held together by Jane Wright, the musical director. The Haverhill Choral Society has gone from strength to strength under her direction.

The performance was a glorious gift for a beautiful May evening.

Guitar star to shine in packed centre line-up

THERE'S a packed line-up at the Haverhill Arts Centre this week.

French-Algerian guitarist Pierre Bensusan is widely recognised as one of the most eloquent and diverse world musicians of our time. His manner of playing defies classification, crossing world, classical, jazz, traditional, folk and more.

He takes to the stage on Saturday at 8pm.

■ Calling all blushing brides, come along on Sunday for a wedding fayre, with more than 20 exhibitors under one roof, containing all the essential ingredients for your perfect big day. Browse the latest in photography, cakes, flowers, hair and make-up, dresses, entertainment and honeymoon advice.

■ Rod Pooley will be the guest of the Haverhill Keyboard Club next Tuesday with a repertoire of musical styles including jazz, funk, classical, popular and dance music.

■ Between the Cracks, a collaboration between Theatre Royal at Bury St Edmunds and Suffolk MIND, takes place on Thursday, May 27 at 7.30pm.

Linda's world veers crazily between the dazzling and the dark: supersensitive to the feel, the smell and the colour of things, she battles to find an easy way to dwell with the darlings and the demons that are part of herself.

She's funny, creative and dynamic and has been diagnosed with borderline personality disorder – hard for her to understand, and harder still for those who care for her.

■ Tube, an exciting group of musicians from Cambridge and Haverhill with a varied repertoire – including the classics, the contemporary, the bold and the downright different – will perform at the arts centre on Friday, May 28 from 7.30pm. Their aim is to bring a novel perspective to the genre of brass music, to make it challenging, enlightening and fun!

■ Leonardo DiCaprio stars in Shutter Island (15), which hits the arts centre's big screen tonight at 7.45pm. U S Marshals Chuck Aule and Teddy Daniels travel to a secluded island off the coast of Massachusetts to search for an escaped psychiatric patient, and uncover a web of deception.

■ Colin Firth offers a masterclass in quite devastation as George, a gay professor whose partner of 16 years has unexpectedly passed away, in A Single Man (12A) next Wednesday and Saturday, May 29, at 7.45pm.

■ Briefcase Blues Brothers, which was due to take to the stage tomorrow, has unfortunately been cancelled.

■ For more details about the shows, or to book tickets, phone (01440) 714140 or go to www.haverhillartscentre.co.uk

Guitar master: Pierre Bensusan will play the arts centre this weekend.

Shappi's take on our lives

FROM the days of doing Margaret Thatcher impressions as a child, Shappi Khorsandi's keen political and social awareness has made her stand out from the crowd, and has now earned her a place as one of the hottest comic acts of the moment.

Feisty, flirty and fearless, she delivers knock-out lines with a witty dryness all her own and is a frequent guest on Live At The Apollo, 8 out of 10 Cats and Have I Got News for You. She is also the best-selling author of A Beginners Guide to Acting English.

She brings her own show to Cambridge tonight when she stops off at The Junction.

The Iranian-born comic comes from a family of storytellers and performers. Her father is well known for his one-man shows, but it was as a result of his satirical writings on the Islamic Republic's ideologies that the family fled to England in the 1980s.

Her latest show is sure to provide another spiky, sassy take on the world we live in, engagingly delivered, with plenty of banter with those seated near the front.

■ An Evening with Shappi Khorsandi, The Junction, Clifton Road, Cambridge, CB1 7GX, tonight at 8pm. Tickets cost £12 (£10 concessions). Contact the box office on (01223) 511511 or visit www.junction.co.uk

ROBIN HOOD (12A, 140 mins)
Action/Drama/Romance. Russell Crowe, Cate Blanchett, Mark Strong, Max von Sydow, Kevin Durand, Scott Grimes, Alan Doyle, Mark Addy, William Hurt, Oscar Isaac, Eileen Atkins, Matthew Macfadyen, Douglas Hodge, Danny Huston. Director: Ridley Scott.

DIRECTOR Ridley Scott and leading man Russell Crowe reunite for a thunderous new opening chapter in the legend of the 12th century folk hero. Shot with Scott's typical bombast, this Robin Hood juxtaposes spectacular battle scenes with romantic interludes, political intrigue and melancholic flashbacks, all set to Marc Treitenfeld's rumbustious score. It's unabashedly macho and predictable with an inevitable battle cry for Crowe to rally the troops into action.

Richard The Lionheart (Huston) is slain on the battlefield by the besieged French. Fearless archer Robin Longstride (Crowe) and his friends Little John (Durand), Will Scarlet (Grimes) and Allan A'Dayle (Doyle) head back to England.

To secure safe passage home, Robin poses as slain knight Sir Robert Loxley (Hodge) and continues the ruse with the dead man's wife, Marion (Blanchett), in order that she clings on to the family estate once ruled by the now blind and decrepit, Sir Walter Loxley (von Sydow).

Robin falls in love with Marion but any chances of an enduring romance are threatened by double-crossing Sir Godfrey (Strong). Meanwhile in London, Prince John (Isaac) seizes the throne but quickly makes enemies of advisor William Marshal (Hurt) and his mother, Eleanor of Aquitaine (Atkins). Robin Hood is a lively jaunt through Plantagenet history, incorporating the familiar figures of Friar Tuck (Addy) and the Sheriff of Nottingham (Macfadyen).

Screenwriter Brian Helgeland ends with Robin and co exiled in the forest, accompanied by the title card, "And so the legend begins".

If Scott's film hits the bullseye at the box office, you can be sure that Robin and Marion will ride once again in a sequel.

It's back to the wild for Chelsea show gardens

The credit crunch may be over, but concerns about our environment remain in full swing, which explains why many of the 33 show gardens at this year's RHS Chelsea Flower Show are taking wildlife or biodiversity as their theme.

Of course, the RHS flagship show will, as always, include the weird and the wonderful. This year, visitors will see a huge floral Chinook "hovering" in the Great Pavilion and fake grass will be laid for the first time. And the most expensive garden ever created at Chelsea, The Ace of Diamonds garden – costing a cool £20 million and featuring jewels including a £1m peony-shaped ring with pink and green gems – will no doubt attract attention.

But there's also a big wildlife theme at this year's event, with much more serious undertones. Show gardens include a bee-friendly plants courtyard garden, a sustainable highland garden, an RHS biodiversity display and the Bradstone biodiversity garden.

by Hannah Stephenson

The RHS is marking the 2010 United Nations' International Year of Biodiversity at the show by highlighting that gardens have an important role to play in helping to slow down the global decline of biodiversity, yet are increasingly threatened by development.

Its display will show that gardens are Britain's biggest wildlife reserve, for example highlighting that they have a greater density of bumblebee nests than any other habitat and what we can do to help wildlife in our outside spaces.

Guy Barter, head RHS advisor, explains: "Any garden, whether contemporary or more traditional, is full of living organisms and is remarkably rich compared to other environments, such as some kinds of modern farmland.

"Diversity in garden types and styles, taken with other nearby features – railways, canals or parks for example – provide the range of habitats that make urban environments so effective in sustaining biodiversity."

Visitors to the display will see different planting combinations and materials to encourage wildlife and get advice on sustaining living organisms. The RHS exhibit is one of 11 in the Continuous Learning section, which will all be highlighting the power of plants.

Another highlight is the One Plot Pledge, a grow-your-own exhibit demonstrating that vegetable gardening can be just as attractive as gardening with ornamentals and has added health benefits. It has been created by herb expert, broadcaster and author Jekka McVicar and charity Garden Organic.

The biodiversity theme continues in the World Land Trust exhibit Saving the Atlantic Rainforest, a major hotspot and home to 20,000 plant species, 40 per cent of which are endemic.

What can we take away from Chelsea with us this year? There are those gardeners who will groan at the thought of leaving untidy nettle beds or log piles to attract butterflies and hedgehogs on an otherwise beautifully ordered plot.

But there are things you can do to help biodiversity and keep your open space looking its best, even if you have the most formal of gardens.

Many brightly coloured and scented flowers are a magnet to pollinating insects.

Think of divine low hedges of lavender, beautiful cottage garden favourites such as roses, nepeta and foxgloves. Stick to the old-fashioned, single varieties that haven't been too hybridised, as bees find it difficult to extract the pollen from most double-flowered types. Plate-like flowers such as asters, Michaelmas daisies and rudbeckia are all great for pollinating insects.

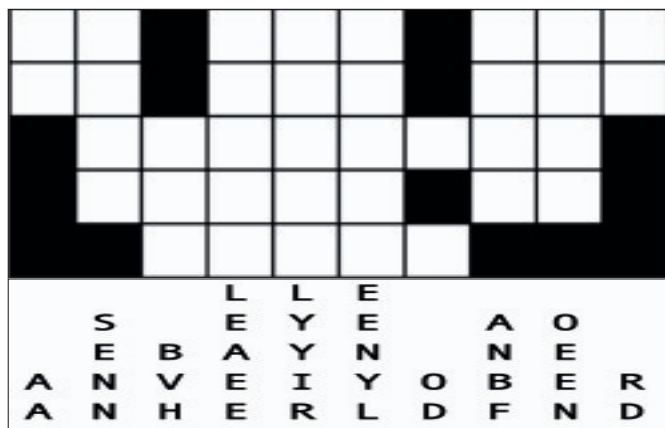

On show: visitors at this year's RHS Chelsea Flower Show will notice a wildlife or biodiversity theme among many of the gardens. CP

Install a water feature – it doesn't have to be a huge pond – and soon you will have frogs, birds and other creatures visiting it.

Plant mixed hedges such as hawthorn, yew and field maple to attract wildlife, while berried shrubs will be a magnet for birds.

And if it all sounds like a bit of a yawn, you can always shelter under the "hovering" floral Chinook in the Grand Pavilion.

■ The RHS Chelsea Flower Show runs from May 25-29 at Royal Hospital, Chelsea, London. For information go to www.rhs.org.uk/chelsea

Mortgages

Whatever your mortgage needs

Sound advice from a fully independent professional can help...

Why the need for mortgage advice?

Taking out a mortgage, for most of us, is the largest financial commitment we will make during our lifetime. And given the large variation in offerings from the many lenders out there, not receiving sound and independent advice can often ensure we miss out on a mortgage product that would have been more appropriate or cost effective for us.

Independent Advice

As we are not tied to any particular provider, we can offer Mortgages from the whole of the market. This ensures that you receive truly independent advice. In addition to offering a solution for your mortgage requirements, we can also assist you in obtaining the most competitive insurance premiums and provide reviews in the future to ensure that your arrangements are continually competitive and appropriate for you.

IBA Financial Solutions Ltd

Appointments can be made at the office or home visit if preferred. An initial consultation is free and without obligation. However, for mortgages if you decide to proceed we will be paid by way of commission or by way of a fee or a combination of both. The amount of the fee will be dependent on the level of advice being provided.

This will be a one-off amount, usually £295. Any fee to be paid will be agreed with you at the outset.

IBA Financial Solutions Ltd is an appointed representative of Sesame Ltd.

Your home may be repossessed if you do not keep up repayments on your mortgage.

Pearson runs inflict defeat on Horseheath

CHAMPIONS Sawston piled more agony on Horseheath with a comprehensive victory in Division One of the Adams Harrison Midweek League.

Marc Pearson hit 81 and Matt Higginbotham 45 to propel Sawston to 158 for 6, and Joe Greenstock then took 3 for 18 as Horseheath were dismissed for 75.

In a reduced overs game, Saffron Walden kept up their good start with in-form Nick Hurford leading the way with 64 and Darren Cousins adding 35 in a very useful score of 135 for 7.

Stuart Morrison was the pick of the Babraham bowlers with 3 for 33 and Chris Palmer then made 25, but Babraham fell well short on 94 for 7.

Weston Colville edged home with four wickets and four balls to spare against promoted Brockley as Evan Gard (46) and Peter Bragg (32) took them to 140 for 6.

That was in reply to Brockley's 139 all out, in which James McKinney hit 32 and Elliot Smith 39. Isaac Reed picked up 3 for 27 for Brockley, while Fred Scruby and Matt Daniels took three wickets each for Colville.

In Division 3A, Dan Poole was man of the match as Haverhill II put a dent in Gestingthorpe's promotion hopes.

He took 4 for 31 as Gestingthorpe were restricted to 122 for 8 and then hit an unbeaten 53 to take Haverhill to 123 for 5. Carl Bradford supported him with a knock of 40 not out.

West Watting (122 for 3) went top of the table with a 20-run win over Great Yeldham (102 for 4).

Tom Daniels smashed an unbeaten century to set up an emphatic win for Balsham against Babraham II in Division 3B. Nick Abbey chipped in with 25 as Balsham reached 160 for 4, before holding Babraham to 86 for 5.

Meanwhile, Helions Bumpstead bowlers Steve Jones and Bradley Richardson took 3 for 11 and 3 for 23 respectively to dismiss Linton for 68. Earlier, Helions posted 144 for 3 thanks largely to Andrew Searle's 57.

Abington II (155 for 6) beat Weston Colville II (54) by 101 runs.

In Division Two, Billy Byford took 3 for 13 and hit 29 not out as Long Melford won at home to Hurdon by 53 runs.

Gareth Boon hit 54 and John Cole an unbeaten 28 as Melford put up 206 for 4, and Hurdon reached 153 for 8 in reply.

Lambert seals title glory

Double delight: West Watting under-13s, sponsored by Qualitape UK, celebrate their second successive title win. CP

Witchford 1 West Watting 3

Cambridge & Dist Colts League, under-13C MARK Coulson grabbed the opener early on as Watting beat the KO Cup winners to set the seal on their back-to-back championships.

However, a Witchford corner was headed into the net for 1-1 soon afterwards.

Harvey Scotton and Leon Bailey gained control in central midfield, Sam Ager, Ben Murray, Scott Ankers and Lewis Massie secured the defence, and wide men Coulson and George Sheath were always a threat.

Michael Torode also kept the opposition midfield under control, while keeper Aaron Millar made several fine saves.

Coulson bravely headed the ball in from a Scotton cross for 2-1, before Ryan Cooper collected from Robert Foster and sent a shot thudding against the post and Earle Lambert followed up to knock in his 40th goal of the campaign to seal a 3-1 victory.

It completed Watting's successful season, in which they picked up 63 points from a possible 66.

Men of the match were Murray and Bailey.

Trials for next season take place early next month. Anyone interested please contact Kevin Ager on 07769 706589.

Saffron Walden 1 Thurlow 2

Cambs Mini Soccer League, under-nine THURLOW got off to a flying start as Finlay Plant picked up the ball from a Finlay Dray throw and slotted into the corner of the net.

Thurlow continued to pressure Walden, playing some great football and got their reward when Tyfun Yagor played the ball through to Plant, who got his second.

The start of the second half saw Walden get one back, but Thurlow's defence held firm, with Will Wilson and man of the match Jack Edwards in top form, as was Toby Egan in goal.

Seniors turn out to remember Alan

THE Alan Wakeman Friendship Trophy was played at Haverhill GC to commemorate the life of the club's former senior captain. The event was well supported, with more than 60 seniors taking part. The winners were Derek Olive, Peter Cundall, Val Shipp and Norman White. Shirley Wakeman presented the trophy and she was thanked by the 2010 senior captain Dick Sisman for helping to organise the day and also for all the fundraising work she carries out for the club. The men's midweek medal once again produced some fine scores - which is testament to the excellent condition of the course. Overall winner on countback was Andy Bareham, who shot a gross 70 to finish

The Linton Enterprise held its 10th Anniversary Golf Day at Haverhill with 64 pairs taking part in the fourball betterball stableford event.

Fred's wickets are all in vain

WESTON Colville went down by four wickets in their Tucker Gardner Cambs & Hunts Premier League, Division Two match with Godmanchester Town II on Saturday.

Colville skipper Adie Westley top-scored with 40 but, with little support, the innings closed on 104 all out with Simon Rose bowling well for Town to take 4 for 40.

Fred Scruby did his best to defend the small total by taking 5 for 34, but Godmanchester opener James Howells (48) inspired his team to victory, with the score reaching 105 with four wickets remaining.

Martin Giles did his bit with bat and ball to no avail as Horseheath went down to take 4 for 40. Giles hit 77 as the mainstay of the visitors' innings before they were all out for 153, Richard Hadley taking 3 for 27 and David Coutts 3 for 57.

Andrew Haines (33) and Alex Raha (29) got Camden off to a decent start with an opening stand of 51 before both fell victim to Giles. Dipanjan Basu carried things on with 41 before he too succumbed to Giles, who took 5 for 46.

But despite a rapid middle-order collapse, Ben Piper claiming 3 for 25, the hosts got across the line with 156 for 8.

In the Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship, Haverhill suffered their first defeat after crashing by nine wickets at home to Hadleigh in Division Two, being dismissed for 117 before the visitors eased to 123 for 1.

Dan Poole hit 60 and took 3 for 46 in Haverhill's match at Acton on Sunday, but still finished on the losing side.

Poole joined Dave Godwin in a stand of 80 to rebuild the innings after a slow start, but Haverhill's total of 174 off their 40 overs was still below-par.

Poole then received support with the ball from Russell Davis, who took 3 for 41, and Rob Sullivan claimed two scalps, but Acton's tail held their nerve to complete a two-wicket victory with three overs in hand.

Haverhill II came out on the right end of see-saw match against Horringer, winning by 26 runs on Sunday.

A pitch of inconsistent bounce made batting difficult and regular wickets fell as Haverhill reached 74 for 4 after 20 overs and then subsidised to 88 for 6, Anthony Phillips having contributed 34.

Tom Saville led late resistance with an unbeaten 37, but Haverhill were all out for 157.

Horringer's reply was well ahead of the target rate from the start, with the score reaching 98 for 2 at 20 overs.

But a stunning catch by David Saville off the bowling of Steve Saville removed the Horringer dangerman and changed the game.

Steve Saville finished with great figures of 5 for 23 off 10 overs and Horringer were all out for 131.

Mike pondering Wrattling future

MIKE Bavester is mulling over his future as player-manager of West Wrattling following a draining end to the Kershaw League, Premier League campaign.

Wrattling completed their season with a 4-1 win at home to relegated Fordham with two goals from Sam Green and one each from Paul Jenkin and Cody Frazier. Mauz Al Sheik replied for Fordham.

But it was their fourth game in the space of a week and 19th match in the last two months, with Bavester admitting he was feeling the strain. He said: "I've become a little bit disillusioned with it."

"I've never had to do what we've done in the last six weeks in all my involvement in football."

"It's not what football is about and I don't want to go through it again next year unless there are going to be reservations made for bad weather and having cup runs."

"It's not just the people playing, it's the people that help put the goals up and make the tea, because most teams in this league are village clubs and it's all down to people's goodwill."

"If I decide not to carry on, I'll let the club know sooner rather than later because they'll want to find someone else to do it and there's a chance they'd want to bring their own players in."

"If I stay, I'd like to bring another three or four players in to strengthen, but if not, whoever gets the job will have good, young side with a strong nucleus of players."
